

ADMITTED LATENESS BUT NOT INEBRIETY

Former Offense Held Not to be a Crime

Being out late at night was the worst that Fred Carlson would own up to when he was arraigned in the city court yesterday morning. He was arraigned on the charge of being in a state of intoxication, on the streets of Bisbee, but when the charge was read to him he entered a vigorous denial, saying that he admitted being out too late at night, but that the charge that he was drunk was not true. He said that he had concluded that it was too late for a gentleman to be out and had started home when he was picked up by an officer.

Having entered a plea of not guilty, the court set his case at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, retaining the defendant's watch as security, but before that hour in the afternoon came around, he reappeared and changed his plea to guilty and was fined $2.50, which he paid. He was unable to do without his watch, which was delivered to him when the fine was paid.

The court refused to hear a plea of guilty to being out late at night, saying that the curfew law did not apply to adults, and furthermore, the complaint sworn to by the officer did not charge him with keeping late hours.

R. A. Pryde, keeping house of prostitution, Wilcox, on bail.

From the above list it will be seen that six defendants are being held on alleged charges of murder and with two cases still remaining untitled at the last term of the district court, there had at least been a club meeting, even if there had not been a public rally.

The democrats were all there, too, he said, that is, those who were in Bisbee over Sunday, and if any of them were missing he had not noticed their absence. There were enough candidates to go around, anyway. Possibly there was some celebration going on other than the greeting of the aspirants for office, but if so it was not particularly noticeable, and it had not in any way disturbed campaigning in the slightest degree.

Other returning candidates told the same tale. There had been an enthusiastic meeting of the democratic club at Crystal Hall there had been speaking at Douglas, democracy was rampant and preparing for a triumphal march into office, the only remaining step being the selection of leaders for the expedition on Tuesday next.

Thus the play goes on. The celebration at Douglas ended last evening and the curtain on another scene rang down. The candidates will again scatter to the four points of the compass, each to the particular section of fence that he considers in the greatest need of repair.

And after yesterday there remained but five days before the ballots should decide the standard bearers of the two parties.

POLITICIANS OCCUPY ENTIRE ATTENTION

Campaign Overshadows Program Arranged for Good Road Celebration

That the scene of intense political activity had changed, Bisbee knew. That it had probably shifted to Douglas was believed. The active workers who for days had been visitors here had generally departed and local politicians were absent from their usual rendezvous. There was a celebration in Douglas. It required no Sherlock Holmes to deduce that the politicians had gathered in the Smelter City and that the good roads celebration had become a political pow-wow.

Such proves the case. Returning visitors to Douglas, when asked about the celebration appear to have seen no horse races or other sporting events. The one great race is the primary handicap, a free for all with the greatest field of starters that has ever been seen in Arizona.

The racing events at the Phoenix fair, yes, even the great Copper Stakes will have no such entry list as this. In the going the candidates are crowding each other off the track as they strive for the pole and two races, the republican handicap, and the democratic free for all, are being run at the same time.

Fred Sutter candidate for the democratic nomination for superior court judge, returned yesterday afternoon from Douglas, where he had the night before attended a meeting of the Douglas democratic club. He believed that at the same time there had been held a republican meeting, but of this he was not certain, he had been interested only in the democratic meeting. Yes, all of the republican politicians had been there, and their presence was enough to indicate that there had at least been a club meeting, even if there had not been a public rally.

The democrats were all there, too, he said, that is, those who were in Bisbee over Sunday, and if any of them were missing he had not noticed their absence. There were enough candidates to go around, anyway. ## JAPANESE TROOP OF ATHLETES IN BISBEE

Genuine novelty is in store for the patrons who attend the Royal tonight and tomorrow night, October 19 and 20, for Shosha Yokoyama and his troupe of Japanese wrestlers, sword dancers, fencers and athletes will feature in the program that is offered.

This troupe is now en route from San Francisco to New York, has made stops at various points along the line, and on each occasion has entertained and pleased large houses. In Arizona such has been the case at Phoenix and in Tucson. From here they will go on to Douglas and thence to El Paso, at both of which places they will furnish exhibitions.

Shosha Yokoyama is the heavy middleweight wrestling champion of Japan. He has a standing challenge out to meet all comers at the Japanese style of wrestling and in this country his challenge has been accepted by scores of wrestlers who have all fallen victims to his prowess.

Recently he issued a challenge to Al Ketchell to meet him here, but Ketchell is unwilling to fall for anything in the jiu-jitsu line. He would take the Japanese champion on at catch as catch can, but does not know the jiu-jitsu tricks and side-steps.

At the Royal Shosha Yokoyama will, with the aid of other members of the troupe, show the Japanese style of wrestling, or jiu-jitsu, including the fine points of the game and the skill he has acquired in its methods.

There are expert swordsmen in the party and they will give fencing exhibitions. There will be dancing and other features that will please. The well known ability of the Japanese, the methods of physical culture they employ from childhood to manhood all insure numbers on the program that will prove interesting and entertaining.

In addition to these numbers there will be the usual reels of motion pictures interspersed through the program.

Dominican Lotteries.

Lotteries are operated in all important towns and cities of the Dominican republic. In many of the larger cities there are from two to five, practically all under municipal supervision. Seventy per cent. must be given in prizes, 5 per cent. goes for streets and roads, and the rest, less expenses, is divided among the public hospitals, schools, fire departments and charities.

BEAUTIFUL BALLOT DELICATE PINK HUE

Sample Ticket Ought to Awaken Interest in First Election

Clerk H. E. Berner of the board of supervisors yesterday issued yards and yards of pink paper from which the voters of Cochise county are to select their tickets, state, county, city and precinct. This does not mean that the official ballots themselves will necessarily be pink, but the samples which are to be posted are decidedly colored.

Clerk Berner is no friend of the new primary law, because it has put upon him about the greatest amount of work in the least allowance of time he has ever undergone. No sooner had the numerous nomination petitions been filed than it was necessary to begin work on the ballots and now that the sample ballots are scores of candidates and posted all over the county. There is some work to this law for direct elections.

The democratic and republican tickets are about of equal length, a little over eighteen inches and about fourteen inches wide. No provision is made against a man forgetting which ticket he started down before he gets through, as the only party denomination is at the top. However as he can receive only the ballot of one party he is comparatively safe.

The ballots present the names of candidates for twenty-six different offices, and for some of these offices there are from two to seven to be chosen. To add to the complications many of the candidates have their platforms under their names, and this stretches the ballot some more. It is very plainly shown how many are to be voted on for every office, provided the voter can read. Other wise he is in a bad fix as it would apparently be impossible to remember preliminary coaching long enough to vote the entire ballot.
